A BRIEF PROFILE

Universitas Negeri Padang, UNP is one of the oldest universities in Indonesia. It was first founded as a teacher training college (Perguruan Tinggi Pendidikan Guru) in Batusangkar, West Sumatra Indonesia on 23 October 1954. Then it became the Institute of Education and Teacher Training (IKIP Padang). In 1999, the status of university was accorded, with a wider mandate to run non-educational study programs as well.

In the course of its development, UNP has consistently focused its core mission on education while also producing professionals for other fields. Externally, UNP seeks to extend cooperation and networks with related parties at local, regional, national, and international levels.
